PARTY AT METACLEE'S

Gardner

Where the Museum Has Come From

1979-82 3 years of vigorous collecting. A lot of unique items saved.

Collecting remains an important national role for CM. Example: the JOHNIAC from Rand was recently acquired after rotting outside in LA for years.

1982-87 5 years of building exhibits that reach to ever wider audiences; wider in educational level, and wider in terms of origin. Over half our visitors in the summer months come from outside New England, with 20% from abroad.

Where the Museum is Now

Show video of Museum today (3 collated excerpts taken from television reports).

The Computer Museum has established the world's greatest set of educational exhibits about computers.

It is now sharing these across the country through travelling exhibits and "Exhibit Kits." CM's Exhibit Kits are directly inspired by the Exploratorium which has had a major worldwide impact on Science Centers through its series of exhibit "Cookbooks."

A Computer Museum Exhibit Kit is a package that includes software, custom hardware, documentation, background information and a bibliography that enables any institution to replicate the finest of the Computer Museum's exhibits. (eg. Technology Center of Silicon Valley is getting "Color the States," an exhibit demonstrating speech recognition). New exhibits planned (that Oliver will talk about) will also generate many new "Exhibit Kits."

The Computer Bowl - a national event, screened nationally on PBS.

Draft Outline for Metcalfe presentations page 2 10/14/89

Where the Museum is Going

Launching development of a brand new set of exhibits that will have a much deeper and wider educational impact that you'll hear about from Oliver.

New Exhibit Kits, traveling exhibits, publications, educational presentations (Adeline to specify what is explorable) for science museums and technology centers that will help educate and inspire people around the country on the evolution, technology and impact of computing.

Tell us how the Museum can serve you, and become a part of it!

Oliver

Where the Museum is Going in Exhibits

The overall exhibit plan: evolution, technology, applications & impact

The Walk-Through Computer

prestigious advisors and funders;
potential to become as noted as the Walk-Through Heart

Milestones

rich combination of artifacts and interactive video.

Computer Discovery Center

collaboration with BCS;
source of many kits
addresses what is within reach for everyone

Networked Society

applications on the large scale

Where the Museum is Going in Education

Present parts of Adeline's plan that have national implications?
